1. The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed. Note MPEP 606.01.
2. The drawings are objected to under 37 CFR 1.83(a). The drawings must show every feature of the invention specified in the claims. Therefore, the processor and its coupling to both inputs and the display must be shown or the feature(s) canceled from the claim(s). No new matter should be entered.

Corrected drawing sheets in compliance with 37 CFR 1.121(d) are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. Any amended replacement drawing sheet should include all of the figures appearing on the immediate prior version of the sheet, even if only one figure is being amended. The figure or figure number of an amended drawing should not be labeled as "amended." If a drawing figure is to be canceled, the appropriate figure must be removed from the replacement sheet, and where necessary, the remaining figures must be renumbered and appropriate changes made to the brief description of the several views of the drawings for consistency. Additional replacement sheets may be necessary to show the renumbering of the remaining figures. Each drawing sheet submitted after the filing date of an application must be labeled in the top margin as either "Replacement Sheet" or "New Sheet" pursuant to 37 CFR 1.121(d). If the changes are not accepted by the examiner, the applicant will be notified and informed of any required corrective action in the next Office action. The objection to the drawings will not be held in abeyance.

3. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claim 9 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Claim 9 is introduced as a program, which is non-statutory. A program (regardless of the body of claim 9 reciting a method carried out by a computer) is considered functional descriptive material embodied as data structure which is defined by a set of instructions, which is non-statutory (see MPEP 2106.01 [R-6] I).

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Lee (2005/0157948).

Lee (noting Fig. 1) discloses a method carried out by a video display device (television) 12 that can display primary and secondary images in a PIP mode (Fig. 2).

Included are plural inputs 24, one which defines a primary image such as from the Internet (section [0017]) from which a signal comprises information relating to the type of signal (e.g. HTML: section [0015]); and a second of the inputs 24 can be that which forms video window 102, it being the PIP insert.

Video unit 14 meets the claimed processor that is operatively coupled to the display (as shown) and the plural inputs (as shown), and it analyzes the information relating to the type of first input signal (e.g. if it includes text for display: section [0022]) which processor would thereafter adjust the PIP display mode pertaining to resolution (e.g. sections [0023] and [0024]), thereby meeting claims 1 and 8.

As for claim 2, the first input signal (a browser signal) includes a filed extension (HTML is given as an example: section [0015]) which is information relating to the type of signal.

As for claim 3, a PIP characteristic that is adjusted is its position as well as resolution.

Regarding claims 4-6, Lee allows for various types of input signals to be received (section [0017]), including broadband (cable) and television, which is an A/V signal.

As for claim 7, the display can be a digital display, and digital displays are integrated devices (section [0014]).

Considering claim 9, Lee points out that the method can be carried out on a programmed device (section [0014]).

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
